

Hi, I'm DaBin.

I keep the useful bits of your day - an idea, a link, an image or a file - so you can find them again and get back to work.

Find me at your chosen screen corner or camera island. Drop something onto me, press Command-V while hovering, or click once to open.

1 Choose a project

Keep notes, tasks, links and files together. Use filters and the compact date picker to choose a day or week.

2 Three places to begin

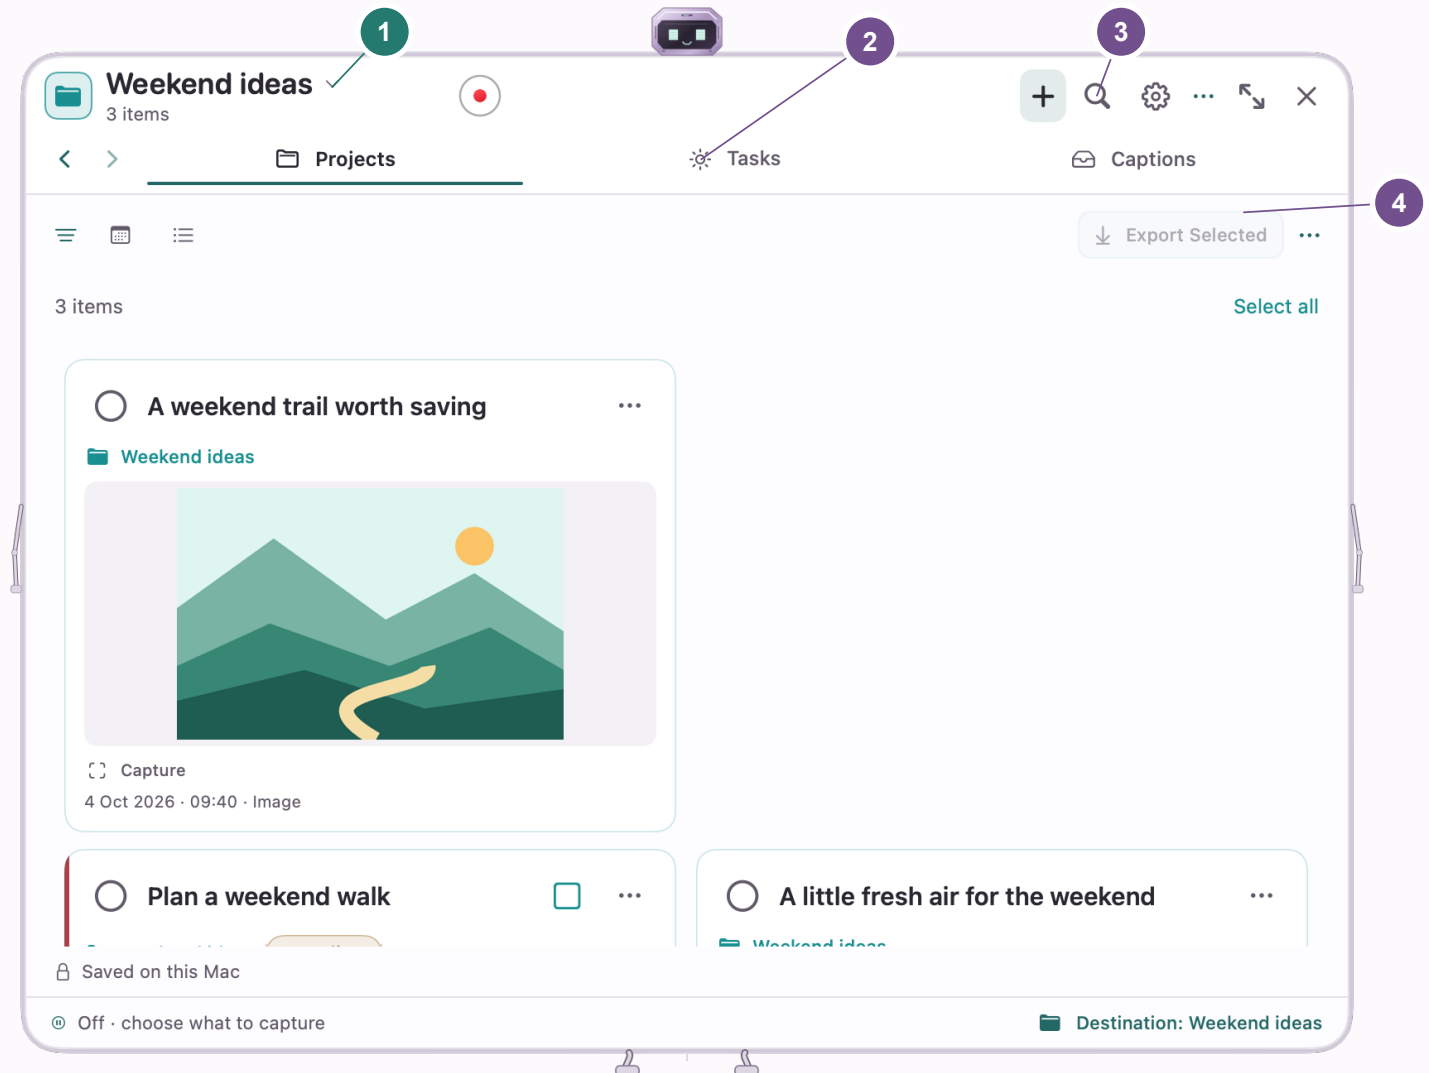

Captions catches new things. Tasks helps you focus. Projects keeps related work together.

3 Search all saved work

Click Search to look across your saved DaBin content, even when you start inside a project.

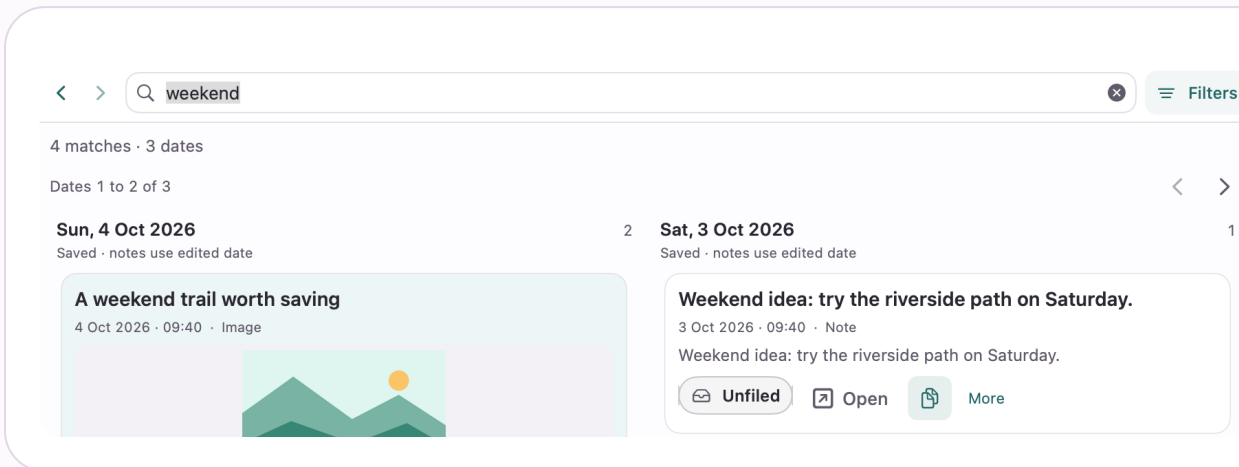

4 Take work with you

Check the items you want, then use Export Selected to save a local ZIP. The nearby menu opens the project folder in Finder.

Save it. Find it. Pick it up again.

Three small habits, plus a little help when you want it.

1 Find it by a few words.

In Search, type or paste a word. Matches line up in date columns, newest first. Use filters when you want to narrow things down.

Search covers your saved content. Files can contribute locally extracted text when available.

2 Save now. Sort later.

Drop or paste something into Captions. The idea/task input shows the project that will receive it. Open a card to add a comment or choose its project.

Drag a card preview, title or caption into an app that accepts that content. Your saved original stays here.

3 Give one task your attention.

Click + to open New task. Priority tags go from green (Low), through amber (Medium), to red (High).

Set a focus time and press Play. When time is up, the robot reminds you; mark the task done when you finish.

A little help saving? Your choice.

Auto Capture is off by default. In Settings, choose Clipboard, Screenshots, or both; screenshots need a folder you select. It saves new changes, not a recording of your screen.

The red dot shows recording. Rapid saves share a count. Quiet mode and Reduce Motion stay still. Pause anytime.

Make yourself comfortable.

Drag an empty spot at the top to move between monitors. Resize from an edge or use Expand. Saved content stays on this Mac. Website previews are optional.
