

Hi, I'm DaBin.

I keep the useful bits of your day - an idea, a link, an image or a file - so you can find them again and get back to work.

Find me in a screen corner. Drop something onto me, press Command-V while hovering, or double-click to open.

1 Choose a project

Keep notes, tasks, links and files together. Use All, Files or Tasks to narrow the workspace.

2 Three places to begin

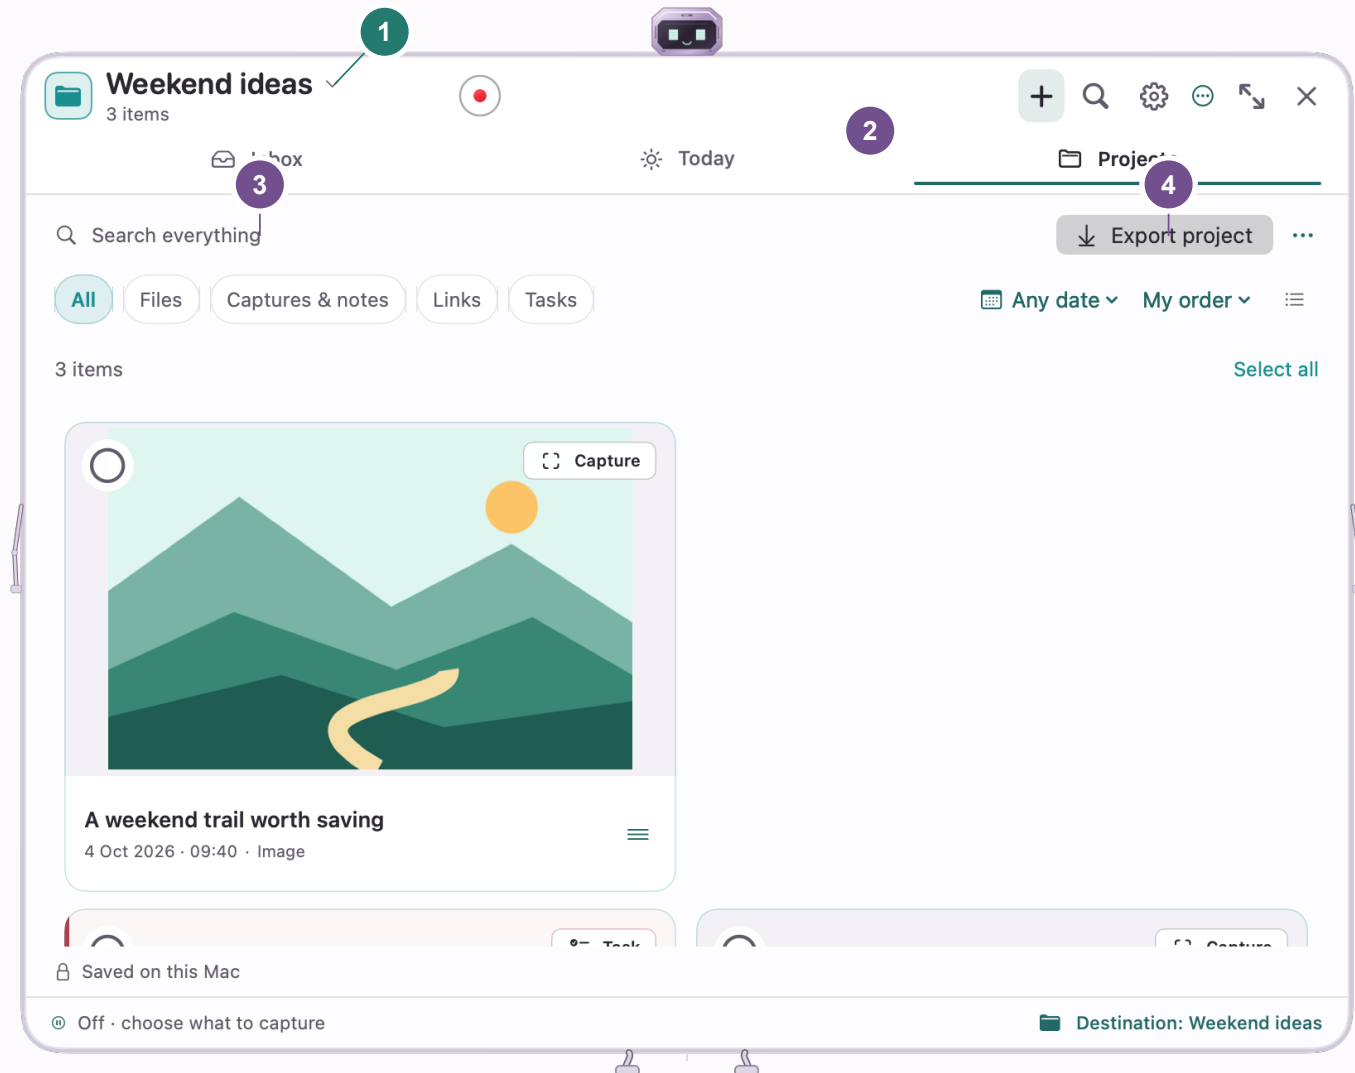

Inbox catches new things. Today helps you focus. Projects keeps related work together.

3 Search all saved work

Click Search to look across your saved DaBin content, even when you start inside a project.

4 Take work with you

Export project saves a local ZIP. Select cards to export just those items. The nearby menu opens the project folder in Finder.

Save it. Find it. Pick it up again.

Three small habits, plus a little help when you want it.

1 Save now. Sort later.

Capture now. Organize later.

An idea for the weekend...

Paste Files Task

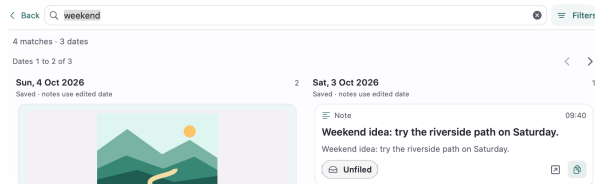

Filters

Drop items here. Everything stays on this Mac.

Drop or paste something into Inbox. Open a card to add a comment or choose its project.

Drag a card preview, title or caption into an app that accepts that content. Your saved original stays here.

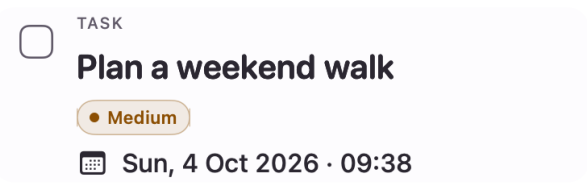

2 Find it by a few words.

In Search, type or paste a word. Matches line up in date columns, newest first. Use filters when you want to narrow things down.

Search covers your saved content. Files can contribute locally extracted text when available.

3 Give one task your attention.

Click + to open New task. Priority tags go from green (Low), through amber (Medium), to red (High).

Set a focus time and press Play. When time is up, the robot reminds you; mark the task done when you finish.

A little help saving? Your choice.

Auto Capture is off by default. Choose Clipboard, Screenshots, or both; screenshots need a folder you select. It saves new changes, not a recording of your screen.

When running, the dot grows; it dances unless Reduce Motion is on. Check Destination, and pause anytime.

Make yourself comfortable.

Drag an empty spot at the top to move between monitors. Resize from an edge or use Expand. Saved content stays on this Mac. Website previews are optional.
